

Kia ora,

You may be interested in Membership of the Institute of Clinical Psychology, which is a sub-group of the New Zealand Psychological Society (Incorporated). In this document you will find some general information about the ICP including the benefits of membership and our different membership categories. We hope this information helps you with considering joining and choosing the membership category that best suits your current situation.

In the second document you will find the membership application form including supervisor's report template. When submitting your application please complete the relevant sections and provide copies of the required documentation (see application form for more details). Return these to the NZ Psychological Society. Your application will be reviewed by the delegated members of the ICP committee and you will be advised by post once it is processed. We aim to do this in a timely manner, which can be expected to take about 4 weeks once all documentation is received.

We look forward to the prospect of having you as a member of our Institute.

Sincerely
Donna Macdonald
Institute Administrator

NZPsS Institute of Clinical Psychology

As part of the largest professional association of psychologists in New Zealand, the Institute of Clinical Psychology (ICP) shares the New Zealand Psychological Society's commitment to promote and disseminate psychology as a pure and applied science but with a specific focus on the discipline and interests of clinical psychology. Being a member of the Institute provides the combined benefits of the Society and the Institute, and is a great opportunity to contribute to clinical psychology in Aotearoa New Zealand

Aims of the Institute

The Institute of Clinical Psychology was established in the interests of the public and the profession and with a commitment to biculturalism and diversity, to promote the highest standards of clinical psychological knowledge and practice within Aotearoa New Zealand.

The Institute specifically aims to:

- (i) Promote high standards of qualification, competency, and ethically sound practice in clinical psychology
- (ii) Promote high standards of continuing professional competence among members of the Institute
- (iii) Promote high standards of clinical psychological training and research
- (iv) Disseminate information about clinical psychology knowledge and practice in Aotearoa New Zealand
- (v) Practice and promote awareness of the Treaty of Waitangi as part of competent professional practice in clinical psychology.

Membership Criteria and Categories

Full ICP membership requires meeting five main criteria:

- A current financial Member of NZPsS.
- New Zealand Registration as Psychologist in the Clinical Psychologist Scope of Practice.
- Holder of Current Annual Practising Certificate (APC) in the Clinical Psychologist Scope of Practice, issued by the New Zealand Psychologists Board.
- Holder of NZ postgraduate diploma in clinical psychology/professional doctorate in clinical psychology OR holder of recognised overseas equivalent.
- Provide evidence of safe practice through clinical supervision reports.

Other categories are available for those who are in the process of meeting full membership status (i.e., Associate Membership for those who are obtaining the requisite supervision and Student Membership for those completing a clinical psychology training programme), or who have an interest in clinical psychology but do not hold the required post-graduate qualification (i.e., Affiliate Membership). The full list of categories, criteria, and benefits is appended below.

What are the benefits of belonging to the Institute?

Being a member of the ICP provides a range of benefits, including:

- Recognition – your professional status will be easily recognised by employing authorities and other professional bodies. Full Members receive a Certificate of Membership and can use the title MNZPsS, MICP.
- Professional Support – you will have the opportunity to meet and develop relationships with colleagues as part of a network of clinical psychologists throughout New Zealand.
- Training and Conference – you get discounted fees at ICP sponsored workshops and your opinions and preferences can help shape the training that is offered.
- Consultation and Representation – your views on relevant professional matters can be represented through ICP involvement in various government consultation groups and submissions.
- Great Resources and Products – the ICP annually offers small research and project grants designed with practising clinicians in mind, and a student research grant to present at the annual conference. .

Membership Fees

The annual membership levy is $55.00. Please provide payment of this levy along with your application. Once your membership application has been approved this payment will be processed. Thereafter a yearly levy is due with payment of your annual NZPsS levy. Student membership is free.

Governance

The ICP was formally established at the NZPsS's 1999 AGM replacing the old Clinical Division of the New Zealand Psychological Society from the beginning of 2000. The ICP has an elected governing committee that meets four times yearly in Wellington to promote the Institute's aims. While subject to the rules of the Society, the ICP has its own set of governance rules, which are available on the NZPsS website or by request.

So why not become a member of the Institute of Clinical Psychology!

Membership application forms are available from the NZPsS
