

Clinical Psychologist

Job Ref: WAI14300

Where you'll be working: Mental Health Service for Older People

The details: Permanent – 40 hours per fortnight

Come and join our dedicated interdisciplinary team of health care professionals.

About the service:

The mental health and addictions service deliver a variety of services across the Waikato region. We are a service undertaking a huge programme of change to deliver better outcomes to tāngata whai ora and whānau in our region. Nga iwi Ngakaunui - people at the heart is demonstrated best in mental health and addictions, people really are at the heart of all that we do. We know how important strong relationships are; with people who access our services, with their whānau and with the communities we serve.

About the role:

You will conduct comprehensive psychological assessments and provide psychological therapy to clients over the age of 65 years with a wide range of mental health problems. You would be working alongside supportive psychology colleagues who have established expertise within this specialist area. You would formulate and implement therapy confidently from a strong theoretical orientation.

Neuropsychological interest and experience is an advantage but not a necessity.

Some travel to clinics and clients outside of Hamilton will be required.

Applications will be considered only for those with New Zealand registration in the appropriate scope.
