

Dear Health Psychology Student Subscriber,

The New Zealand Psychological Society would like to extend to you an invitation to join our professional group, the Institute of Health Psychologists (IHP). The IHP is the specialist health psychology body within the Psychological Society, which caters specifically for the needs of our profession. As a health psychology student, you are now eligible to join us.

Membership offers you many benefits, in particular;

- ❖ The opportunity to meet and talk with future colleagues and supervisors
- ❖ Assistance in keeping abreast of topical issues within the health psychology profession
- ❖ Free access to IHP Peer review sessions
- ❖ Reduced fees for IHP educational materials and activities
- ❖ Familiarity with ongoing competency standards for health psychologists

How much does it cost?

Nothing! Membership is FREE for all existing NZPsS student members

Who can belong?

Current Student Subscribers of the NZPsS who are enrolled in a postgraduate health psychology programme may join.

What if I don't belong to the NZPsS yet?

Join up! Apply online www.psychology.org.nz/study-careers/student-hq/ or contact the Society's Membership Administrator at membership@psychology.org.nz

How do I join?

Just complete and tear off the bottom of this page and return it to Box 10536, The Terrace, Wellington 6143. PLEASE include verification of your enrolment in the health psychology programme.
